

Meghna Malhotra

Visiting faculty - CEPT University

Meghna is an experienced professional with over 18 years in urban governance and management, specializing in areas such as urban health, water and sanitation, and local government development. She has provided technical support to programs in India, Sri Lanka, Indonesia, and Afghanistan, and played a key role in operationalizing local government associations in India.

Meghna currently manages the convergence program between the National Urban Livelihoods Mission (NULM) and Swachh Bharat Mission (SBM) and leads SBM initiatives in Gujarat. Meghna has also facilitated climate change and urban health programs and designed communication strategies to improve local governance.

As a visiting faculty at CEPT University, she mentors students on urban planning and sustainable solutions. With a background in Architecture and Environmental Planning, Meghna is passionate about empowering local governments to implement sustainable urban solutions.